ABOUT US

Hardwood Design Company | Crafting Authentic Old World Products From Local Resources

We salvage the natural resources around us and manufacture sustainable, thoughtfully sourced hardwood products from them. We control the entire process from forest to floor, sourcing all raw materials from within the United States, and manufacturing them in Texas, ensuring our products are locally made. We use old-school methods to finish each piece by hand, creating an unparalleled, authentically crafted hardwood product.

Specializing in Texas Post Oak, Texas Mesquite, Southern Pecan, and Live Sawn Oak, we have become known in the industry as the leading manufacturer of these unique hardwood species.

THOUGHTFULLY SOURCED

Thoughtfully Sourced is a responsible way of acquiring available raw materials.

Hardwood Design Company began in 1998 by salvaging native Texas Mesquite logs. At the time, we saw an excellent opportunity to manufacture something of value from this abundant resource that would otherwise go to waste. Since then, it has been a priority to source our products from local and indigenous materials.

At Hardwood Design Company, we acquire raw materials in many different yet responsible ways. We obtain dead-standing trees killed by droughts, floods, or other natural causes, timber that is bulldozed and burned to make way for agricultural or urban development, as well as material from old structures that no longer serve their original purpose. Out of these materials, we manufacture beautiful, thoughtfully sourced hardwood products.

The logs pictured on the left are Texas Post Oak trees harvested from a ranch near College Station, Texas. These trees were cut to make room for grazing cattle, and if we had not salvaged the raw logs, they would have been piled up and burned. Texas Post Oaks make incredible hardwood products due to their durability and natural character that you won't find in other species of oak.

DONE RIGHT.

LOCALLY MADE

---

Hardwood Design Company is a Texas-based hardwood manufacturer that believes in using indigenous materials, creating unique products, and doing it exceptionally well.

We source all of our raw materials from small rural towns throughout Texas and the United States and have those materials taken to our manufacturing facility in Bryan, Texas. Here we sawmill the raw materials, properly cure and dry, rip, and mill them to the correct profile. We then sand, hand-scrape, and hand-finish each board to individual design specifications. We choose to manufacture our products all in the same location because it preserves the story of the materials used and is what makes our company unique. The vertically integrated structure of our company allows us to control the entire process from forest to floor to ensure that things are done right.

A brand that proves there is substantial value in American ingenuity, and creativity, Hardwood Design Company is a manufacturer where all products are thoughtfully sourced, locally made, and authentically crafted.

DONE RIGHT.

AUTHENTICALLY CRAFTED

---

We define “authentic” as being real and doing things right. We make the conscious decision to remain true to old-school methods, like hand-scraping and hand-finishing, to enhance the natural beauty of each salvaged species.

Other flooring companies claim to create a similar authentic product using modern technologies to achieve their results, but we’ve found that our way of doing things creates an ultimately customized and handmade hardwood product that suits the individual style of our clients. Every board is finished by hand, piece by piece. Yes, it’s inefficient, but the end result and value of authenticity is unparalleled.

Thoughtfully sourced, locally made, and authentically crafted are the fundamental pillars of Hardwood Design Company. These principles are the foundation of what we do and how we do it.

DONE RIGHT.
